
Title: Bards and Women

Author: Fernwig Teveril

Say good friend, could you tell me what it is
with bards and women? Throughout
me many adventures
in Britannia i came across a nice little town called Moonglow.
Usually a place
known for it magic
and books, i stumbled
across a few bards in these parts. They come to write books
for the Lycaemum but
most improtantly, for their minds, the
women. Two Bards
that i speak of shall be
know by different
names to keep thine
selves from embarresment. Lets
call them Jim and
Bob. One day while making one of me
many trips to the bank
i saw Jim and Bob
drooling over some lady. Now maybe it is just me but they seemed a little TO
intrested in this female, shall we call her Lane. I mean i love women just as much as the next guy but
their smooth talking
and sweet music was going to make me hurl.
I mean, i suppose this is a classic tale of a
warrior getting his women stolen by a
handsome great lover
guy. But what i dont
get is how they can do
that stuff without

being tempted to kill themselves. They sit around saying stupid
things like im a
sucker for a
handsome face. And
kissing the hand of the lady. But i didnt
mind because i was getting a kick out of
watching them make
fools of themselves.
Then, the best part
came when the other bard arived. Whoa was that fun. Both playing
music and hurling
compliments at the poor women. Finally,
with a twirl of her
hands and a chant of Kal Ort Por the lady
was gone. Then the
bards turned to each other, knowing that
she would be back,
and asked who was better. At this point i thought a fight
was going to break out.
Some weird stuff goes
on in Moonglow and most of it is centered
around Bob and Jim.
But one day these Bards will learn that no maiden is worth
the trouble of fighting
each other in a battle
of worths or
making themsleves
look like idiots. So that is me story and come to Moonglow if you
dare because Jim and Bob may be fighting
again and if you are a
pretty women STAY
away from Bob and
Jim. For those buys
are nothing but
trouble to a fair
maiden.
About the Auther-Fernwig Teveril is of the Teveril family. =)
He spends his days
attempting to become a

good guy and generally
hangs out in Moonglow